Arizona Summer

Wedding Poem

The winds of change sweep across the landscape dusting our lives clean for new beginnings
seeds were planted
so long ago
before time
before we were born
blooming in tune
to the sacred melody
we hear without ears
but on this day
we see with human eyes
the fruit of fruition still growing still loving the dancing delight
of love in motion
my heart sings
as I look in the eyes of loved ones
coming together
creating something
so deeply magical
in love for each other that angels gather
singing this song
in a sacred circle
tossing in blessings for you to take along wherever you go
on this road together
I send my love
from deep in my heart I love you both
I can't say enough
I've seen the spark
I saw it catch fire
let it burn
let it grow higher ignite this love
in all that you do nurture each other as you walk together in this blessed life and you come to find the source of all is holding your fire in the palm of its hand..

Married on 12/20/08 at the pavilion in Tohono Chul Park, Tucson, AZ.
Performing the ceremony was Brooke Conley, Jamie's sister.

Married 6/20/08 at the Tlaquepaque chapel with a magical reception on the Patio De Las Campanas. Sedona is my favorite place in Arizona. I have lived in Arizona since 1975 and have always enjoyed Sedona. Everyone involved in the wedding was from Sedona: the music by Bobbie Russell, the reverend Maria Grace and the food which was catered by Heartline Café. It could not have been more perfect! We will never forget our wedding in Sedona, neither will our friends and family.

We had felt for about eight years that an Autumn Sedona would be the backdrop of our fairytale wedding. Ty's family has lived in the third house built in Sedona since the 1950s so he has extensive family history there and I can't think of any other place that compares with the unique beauty of Sedona. While Sedona has a reputation for costly weddings, we are proud to say we had the wedding of our dreams on a budget with 130 people from all over the U.S. and enjoyed a lovely dinner by the Head Chef of Rene's at Tlaquepaque. Inevitably there will be those last minute things that just don't go as planned, but with a backdrop of Sedona it's easy to just smile and move forward.

We had a very unique and beautiful wedding thanks to Weddings in Sedona. All of our guests said they loved it more than any wedding they had been to previously. We selected a Native American shaman ceremony, with Native American flute, beneath Cathedral Rock. This was followed by a delicious meal at Cucina Rustica, and a uniquely crafted wedding cake of a Kachina doll head with feathers made of sugar. We love Sedona, and will return for many anniversaries. Besides being absolutely beautiful, the people we worked with were the nicest we have ever met.
